

Did you know that MBA offers SLI coverage?

Do you know what SLI is?

- Your rental policy provides your renter with state minimum liability coverage. Liability is coverage for damage your renter does to a third person or a third person's property (i.e. if your renter is in an at-fault accident this pays for the person and/or property they have damaged).
- If your renter hits someone they may be liable for any damage exceeding the state minimum limits. If they significantly injure someone the coverage may not be adequate. In states like CA, PA, and NJ the minimum limits are $15,000 bodily injury per person/$30,000 bodily injury per accident. If they injure someone they may be liable for any amount over $15,000.
- For $12.95/day your renter can purchase Supplemental Liability Insurance (SLI) which raises their liability from the state minimum limits to up to $1,000,000 bodily injury liability and up to $50,000 property damage liability.
- SLI is excess coverage which means it provides coverage beyond your underlying liability coverage. For trailers this coverage is excess to the liability provided from the towing vehicle. If towing liability is not provided by the renter's policy SLI will not replace this coverage.
